

12. What is the author's repeated concern (verses 129, 133, 134)?

Reflection Questions: How do I view God's Word? Do I find it to be wonderful? What can I do to enlarge my love for God and His Word? Do I have compassion on the lost? How do I show this love for them?

How can we pray for one another and our church this week?

Quotes to Ponder

It is wonderful that God should have borne testimony at all to sinful men, and more wonderful still that His testimony would be of so heavenly a character, so clear, so full, so gracious, so mighty.

The psalmist was so charmed with the revealed will of God that he felt bound to exhibit its power in his daily life. His wondering and pondering produced reverential obedience.... He was a learner in the school of grace, and his eager spirit longed to be taught of the Lord. Oh for more of this eager hungering, thirsting, pining, panting!

Charles Spurgeon

The sins of sinners are the sorrows of saints.

Matthew Henry

While the Scriptures is clear enough in its basic message for a child to understand, it will not yield its astonishing riches except to trusting, obedient, diligent study and sustained reflection. If this price is paid, however, the return is infinitely greater than the cost.

Timothy Keller

The written Word is designed to reproduce the character of the living Word in our lives.

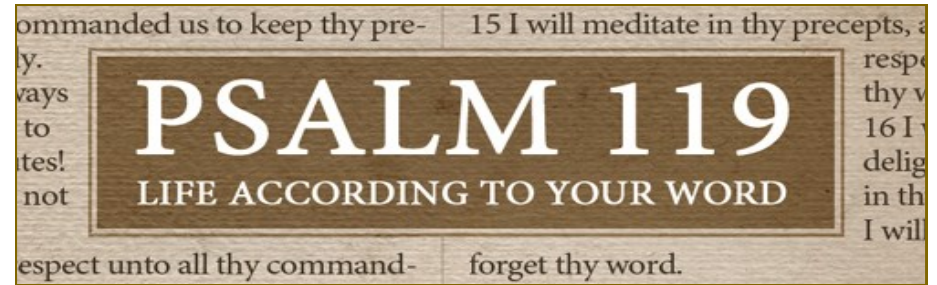

Gene Cunningham

There is nothing for which we should be excited to deeper emotion in respect to our fellow-men than for the fact that they are violators of the law of God, and exposed to its fearful penalty.

Albert Barnes

My desire is to exalt the grace of God; to proclaim salvation alone through Jesus Christ; to declare the sinfulness, helplessness and hopelessness of man in a state of nature; to describe the living experience of the children of God in their trials, temptations, sorrows, consolations and blessings.
